Preface

The volume contains selected papers submitted for the biannual conference on Trends and Innovations in Economic Studies. This year's conference hosted by Irkutsk National Research Technical University, the leading technical university in Eastern Siberia.

The conference was dedicated to discussion of the contemporary management and economic issues that are the most essential for industrial leaders in particular part of Russian Federation. The previous event was hosted by Kazan State Federal University (Volga Federal District). This approach allows to address various issues of dispersed and diversified Russian economy.

The conference focused on the management, investment and resource supply in high technological industrial enterprises. The topics of the conference were covered but not limited to human resources management and engineering education, resource supply chains, and infrastructure, financial markets, and investment activities, innovation management and R&D, quality control and product management, legal support and government relations management. All these topics are of great importance for both and nation-wide technological development.

Manuscripts in the volume consider various management and financial cases of multiple industrial enterprises engaged in different economic areas: railroad and airway transport, instrumentation and vehicle manufacturing, power supply and telecommunication infrastructure, and exploitation of oil, gas and minerals deposits. Despite the fact, that the provided discussion is in the most part related to the current Russian economic situation as well as to technical cooperation within the Eurasian Economic Union, it addresses such global challenges as environmentally-friendly industrial development and regulations for technological companies.
